TWO TOLEDO WOMEN KILLED BY FIEND

ONE IS CLUBBED TO DEATH OTHER KILLED BY BULLET

Act It Is Thought That of a Degenerate---School Teacher Attacked On Way Home---The Other Woman Who Was Married, Was Found By Her Husband When He Returned Home From Work--Similar Crime Was Committed Some Years Ago---The Whole Police Force Put To Work To Hunt Down Fiend.

While every agency of the police department in Toledo was concentrated Tuesday night upon solving the murder of Miss Lily Dale Croy, 26 years old, pretty school teacher, who was attacked criminally and killed Monday night, a call came to headquarters that Mrs. George W. Alden, 48 years old, had been found murdered in her home.

The second murder in less than 24 hours took place within a few blocks of where the school teacher battled for her life and lost. The last murder is as mysterious as the first.

George W. Alden, the husband, returning from work Tuesday night, found all the doors of his home locked and upon forcing an entrance found his wife's body on the dining room floor.

Coroner Charles Henzler found Mrs. Alden had been shot thru her mouth. Miss Croy was beaten to death after she was attacked criminally under a fire escape of Washington school.

Mrs. Alden was found with her night gown partly torn off. Miss Croy's body, too, was found almost entirely without clothing.

Alden left his home early Tuesday morning to go to work. His time card there shows he was not away from his work during the day. Henzler said Mrs. Alden was killed before noon.

In the second murder there is a slight clue. At 9 o'clock Tuesday morning neighbors near the Alden home heard a shot and called police. Detectives made a hurry call to the vicinity, but were unable to find anything unusual, they reported.

Mrs. Alden's body was examined for finger prints, but none could be found. None was found on Miss Croy's body, either.

Both murders, from every indication were the work of a degenerate. After the clothing had been torn blood was smeared over the faces of the victims.

In all probability, detectives say, the teacher's slayer was seeking refuge in the Alden home and Mrs. Alden was slain when she investigated a noise.

Miss Croy's body was found early Tuesday morning by her brother-in-law, J. W. Weist, who led a searching party for the young woman when she failed to return home after attending a university of Toledo, night class.

The back of her head was crushed, which leads investigators to believe that her assailant struck her from behind in the identical manner in which Toledo's mysterious clubber, who terrorized the city a year ago, pounced upon women victims.

The manner of Miss Croy's death especially bears elose resemblance to the slaying of Miss Mary Sandley, a few blocks away, last January.

Coroner Hensler found that Miss Croy had been struck upon the back of her head approximately ten times, and that any one of the blows was sufficient to cause death. Other parts of the body was bruised and Coroner Hensler declared that the young woman had been attacked criminally.

The attack evidently took place across the street from the school, as a path was found over which it was apparent that the body had been dragged. The straggled appearance of Miss Croy's hair indicated that she had been dragged by her hair.

While a foreign trained German police dog was trying to pick up the trail of the clubber, teachers circulated a paper to obtain several thousand dollars to employ one of the fore most detectives in the country.

Lasso Captures Nude Rider in California

Martine, Calif.—The dexterous toss of a lariat has resulted in the capture of Arthur Rogers, "the nude horseman of the Tassapara foothills."

Residents of the countryside around Mount Diablo were greatly perturbed when they noticed a nude horseman galloping down the road. It later developed that Rogers, apparently demented, had escaped from his two brothers and a doctor in a fierce struggle in which his clothing was torn off.

He was tracked to a rocky ravine near here and was lassoed by a cowboy as he emerged from a cave. He was ordered committed to an insane asylum.

MOURNED DEAD IS IDENTIFIED AFTER 24 YEARS

Mother's Love For Her Boy Would Not Believe He Was Dead.

The old, old story of a boy with a wanderlust, who became estranged from his family and was mourned as dead for 24 years had an apparently happy ending in Portsmouth Tuesday.

Mrs. Dora Leming Canary who with a mother's tenacity had refused to believe that her boy was dead, Tuesday received a letter from Holdenville, Oklahoma, saying that her son, Perry, was alive and the father of three children.

When eight years old Perry answered to the glamoring call of the circus and disappeared.

"I stayed with the circus for years" the letter said. "Finally they kicked me out and I had no money. A man befriended me and gave me work. He gave me his name of Bryan. I remembered my real name but I took the name of Frank Bryan.

"I don't remember much about anybody you mother, but I want to see you all."

Perry was located thru an articles printed in a newspaper which brought information from a friend to Perry's brother in Cincinnati.

Wife Loses Husband Over Delayed Message

New York—Because a telegram was delivered an hour later than the sender expected, a young mother has been separated from her husband, and though both are in New York city neither knows where to find the other.

A month ago Louis Bristol, twenty-four, bade his wife and two-year-old boy good-by and boarded a train in Toronto for Thompsonville, N. Y., where he had learned there was work for an experienced waiter. Two weeks later he wrote to his wife, telling her he was making a fair salary and enclosing money for her and the child to join him.

She left Toronto the next day and arrived in Thompsonville, only to learn her husband had left for this city. That evening a telegram the husband had sent to her at Toronto telling her not to come, as he had obtained a better job in New York city, was forwarded to her. It had been delivered in Toronto an hour after the train departed.

It did not tell where he was to work or where he was to live.

WIDOW JOINS LOVER IN PLAN TO END IT ALL

Garrett, Ind. Postmaster Kills Mother of O. S. U. Student.

O. H. Betts, 50, postmaster of Garrett, Indiana, murdered Mrs. Grace Brown, 43, 275 East Eighth avenue, Columbus, then committed suicide by shooting himself, after drinking poison while in an automobile, near Powell Road, nine miles south of Delaware.

This was the decision of Coroner Ray Davis of Delagare, who investigated the finding, Tuesday morning, of the bodies of the man and woman.

Mrs. Brown's body was crumpled under the steering wheel, three bullets in her body. Mr. Betts' body was in a rear seat.

A revolver was clutched in his hand. He had shot himself thru the head.

A partially filled bottle of poison and a tincup were found on the floor of the car.

A four-page letter, written to Cloyd Brown, 18, son of the slain woman and a freshman in the engineering college at Ohio State university, revealed the double tragedy was prompted by attentions Mrs. Brown received from another man.

The letter, found in Mt. Betts' coat pocket, but undated, told of Mr. Betts' acquaintance with Mrs. Brown. He said he had known her 15 years and that they saw each other every week.

"I expect you will be very sad by the time you receive this letter," the letter, persumably written by Mr. Betts, said. "I could noa stand it any longer, and your dear mother could not, either, so we planned to end it all."

"A man who I will call Dick—you know whom I mean," the letter said. No further explanation was given.

Mrs. Brown, a widow, came to Columbus a few months ago, from Lima so her son could attend the university. Her husband, a former engineer for the Baltimore & Ohio railroad at Garrett, where his widow and son resided 20 years before going to Lima last spring, died in 1923.

Young Brown said he had not seen his mother since Sunday. He had been staying at the house of the fraternity of which he was a pledge and she telephoned him there and talked of his school affairs, he said.

He asserted he did not know Mr. Betts was in Columbus and believed his mother, who was employed at various times but not regularly at the Bradford-Husch Co., 44 North High street, did not know in advance of Mr. Betts' visit.

Chlorine Bomb for Home

A chlorine gas bomb has just been perfected by a couple of chemists of San Francisco by which the same results may be obtained in a treatment at home as that provided by more elaborate apparatus. All that is necessary is for the patient suffering from a cold to sit in a closed room for an hour after breaking off the ends of the gas bomb, which is a glass globe filled with pure, filtered chlorine gas. The escaping gas mingles with the air of the room and, it is claimed, will cure a stubborn cold

The Only Way

A young man proposed to a girl and was accepted. After their first tender transports were over they fell into serious talk.

"Now that we are engaged," said the girl, "we must begin to economize. Promise me, darling, that you won't do anything you can't afford."

The young man laughed grimly.

"If I promised you that," he said, "I'd have to break off our engagement."

CROPS OF 1926 TOUGH PROBLEM

Railroads Plan Ahead for Gigantic Movement in Farm Products.

Omaha, Neb.—Western farmers and western railroads are running a race to see which can swamp the other. The farmers expect to harvest millions of bushels of grain, and the railroads are spending millions of dollars getting ready to handle one of the very biggest farm crops in their experience.

Nebraska is promising between 50,000,000 and 70,000,000 bushels of wheat for the railroads to handle; Kansas is assuring them of something like 200,000,000 bushels, Oklahoma expects to harvest around 40,000,000 bushels, and Iowa, Minnesota, North Dakota and South Dakota will swell the total by hundreds of millions.

In corn, Nebraska will furnish the railroads around 200,000,000 bushels minus that portion of the crop which will be eaten by Nebraska hogs and cattle, which, in their turn, will provide big traffic for the railroads; Iowa is looking forward to something like 350,000,000 to 400,000,000 bushels; Kansas will produce near to 100,000,000, and additional millions will be raised by other western states.

Oats Also Considerable Item.

As for oats, some 400,000,000 to 500,000,000 bushels can be counted on from these western states.

And then there is the fruit from California, Oregon, Idaho, Washington, Colorado, Nebraska; potatoes from Nebraska, Colorado, Wyoming, Idaho, Iowa and Kansas; sugar beets and sugar from Nebraska, Wyoming, Idaho, Utah, etc., live stock from all these states, and the general production, including dairying, as well.

Added to this is the tremendous traffic which is shipped into the great trans-Mississippi country — automobiles, farm implements, and the thousand and one articles which the westerners must buy and the railroads to transport them.

As soon as the railroads saw all these prospects for big crops under way, they started their preparations to take care of the immense traffic which would be forthcoming.

The Wabash railroad must have seen an immense increase in the automobile business, for that railroad alone ordered 2,000 extra automobile freight cars in December, and these cars are just now being delivered, ready for the spring business. The Wabash already owned about 6,000 automobile cars.

Coast Fruit Traffic Gaining.

A big increase in the fruit traffic from the Pacific coast is foreseen by the Pacific Fruit express, the fruit-carrying line owned by Union Pacific and Southern Pacific railroads jointly. In January the Pacific Fruit express ordered 5,043 refrigerator cars to add to its already big fleet of refrigerators. These cars will be delivered in time for the fruit crop this year.

The Santa Fe railroad has under order 1,200 refrigerators for this year's fruit trade, and the Northwestern Refrigerator line has just ordered 1,000 of the same class cars for the 1926 business.

Since last November, western railroads have ordered 12,600 freight cars for this year's crop movement. One thousand of these went to the Union Pacific, 1,000 to the Burlington, 1,600 to the Southern Pacific, 2,500 to the Missouri Pacific, 1,000 to the Northern Pacific, 1,700 to the Frisco route, 1,000 to the Santa Fe, 600 to the Soo line, 2,000 to the Wabash, and the remainder to scattering lines.

For the 1926 trade there have been so far ordered by western railroads 1,900 gondola cars, 500 hoppers, 250 stock cars and 500 general-service cars.

In the way of motive power, the western railroads have ordered 155 locomotives of various types for use this year. The Missouri Pacific leads the list with 55.

Big Union Pacific Engines.

The Union Pacific has designed and is having built ten huge three-cylinder locomotives, each more than 100 feet long and capable of hauling a train of 100 loaded cars across the mountains from Cheyenne to Ogden at a rate of 50 miles an hour. This big "Union Pacific type" is the biggest departure in locomotives in 25 years.

The remaining locomotives of the 155 ordered are divided between a number of lines.

The Nebraska wheat crop alone will fill 1,000 trains of 50 cars each, with each car loaded with 1,200 bushels, while the Nebraska corn crop will load 2,600 trains of 50 cars each, 1,500 bushels to the car.

Prospects now are that every one of the freight cars the western railroads have ordered will be filled time after time by these western farmers when their 1926 wheat, corn, oats, live stock, potatoes, fruit, sugar beets and other farm products get under way to market, and will be filled time and time again on the return with automobiles, agricultural implements, furniture and clothing, and with the thousand and one things the West has to buy from "farther East."

QUEEN MARIE'S CIGARETS

At a meeting of the Ohio W. C. T. U. in Steubenville the other day on effort was made to force the adoption of a resolution condemning Queen Marie of Rumania for her attitude toward the smoking habit among women. Queen Marie smokes cigarets and has been quoted as saying that she sees no reason why mature women should not smoke them, although she said she does not permit the young Princess Ileana to do so. When the subject was brought up at the W. C. T. U. meeting Mrs. Florence D. Richards of Columbus, president of the organization, halted the discussion and forestalled action with the truthful and sensible remark that "we have enough house cleaning to do here in America," among our own people.

Mrs. Richards is to be congratulated upon the position she took. To condemn a distinguished foreign visitor for a mere detail of personal conduct would be a highly ungracious and even impudent thing to do. It is none of the Ohio W. C. T. U's. business whether or not Queen Marie of Rumania smokes cigarets or countenances smoking by other women. That is exclusively her own affair and it is a comparatively trifling affair at that, not involving moral turpitude in the slightest degree. It is not the mission of our reform organizations to regulate the personal habits of the world or to condemn any individual, foreign or domestic, for not viewing these matters precisely as they do. We should like to take Mrs. Richards by the hand and congratulate her again.—O. S. Journal.

American Flowers to Bloom at Stockholm

Flowers from Yellowstone park will soon blossom in the royal gardens of the Swedish capital, according to word received in Washington by the United States national park service from Prof. H. S. Conrad of Grinnell college, director of the lecture and nature guide service in the park. During the recent tour of Crown Prince Gustavus Adolphus and his consort through Yellowstone National park, Professor Conrad was detailed to accompany the royal party and to give the prince, whom he found to be an enthusiastic and well-informed botanist, the benefit of his intimate knowledge of the mountain flora. Professor Conrad has shipped to Stockholm a collection of the rarer species of Yellowstone plants, not as yet represented in the royal herbarium, and he has also sent seeds of a number of the choicer flowers which, it is hoped, will become permanent American representatives at the Swedish court.

Plaited Skirt Is Fashion in Paris

Every jumper frock from Paris must have a plaited skirt, observes a fashion writer in the Kansas City Star. This requirement solves very cleverly the problem always before the Paris designer of wresting last year's garments from the clutch of the woman who has grown attached to their smart practicability.

The house of Cherult has added a footnote to this general order, plaiting the jumper blouse as well; and Suzanne Talbot has joined them in urging that the blouse should be lengthened to within a foot of the skirt hem. This suggestion might be more intriguing if we had not already grown too familiar with the long, separate waist known as the tunic blouse. Madeleine and Madeleine-Anna seem likely to have more success with the innovation they advocate; instead of the usual string belt fastened loosely just below the waistline, they have bloused the waist hem into a wide belt fitting snugly about the hips.

The component parts of the ensemble designed for street or afternoon wear are not closely related as they were. The gown is more apt to be in a contrasting color than in a matching one. But as the sport ensemble is of too recent origin to have shown this tendency to drift apart, the jumper frock with its two separate garments offers most alluring possibilities of color combination. Worth has taken full advantage of them in the dress to be worn under his stunning new sports coat of dark red suede leather lined in beige kasha; he has used a dark red kasha for the blouse and the beige kasha of the lining for the plaited skirt. Incidentally, this use of a plain dark color in the waist over a skirt of lighter color, and particularly over a checked skirt, is a mark of this house.

The omnipresent cape covers the jumper frock in the ensembles shown by Premet. A striking model from this house has the cape in a Parma-colored woolen fabric, relieved with pipings of violet; the skirts of the same woolen material and the blouse of jersey in a violet shade.

In describing the contribution Madeleine and Madeleine-Anna have made to the jumper frock ensemble, it is difficult to know whether to say they have disguised the jumper as an ensemble or the ensemble as a jumper. At any rate, they have achieved one of those trick garments of which the French are so fond. This particular specimen had all the appearance of the ordinary bloused sports costume, but when certain concealed fastenings were undone, it was seen to be a three-piece ensemble with the jumper blouse used as a short jacket. The crepe underwaist attached to the skirt matches the lining of the coat blouse.

Garden Hat of Green and Rose Silk Straw

Decidedly stylish is this green and rose silk straw garden hat with tea roses of yellow and rose. It promises to be a summer favorite.

Straight Line, Plaits, on Spring Fashion Card

According to the famous dress designers, women are going to look slender while wearing frocks that have quantities of supple material crushed into them. There can be no doubt about the triumph of the straight line—and consequently the triumph of plaits.

The latest idea in plaiting is the ripple plait, which gives a corded effect to charmeuse or silk crepe. It is in reality a cunning machine plait which never seems to get out of place.

Sets of sunray flounces are introduced at wide intervals on tea dance frocks.

Plain and very finely plaited crepe marocain in bois de rose was used for a smart dance tea frock. With it was worn a turban and girdle of dull gold tissue.

Two-Piece Frock

The two-piece frock is quite popular for the girl fond of sports. A rather stunning frock of gray crepe de chine had a sleeveless blouse and an accordion-plaited skirt. The blouse of gray crepe de chine is bordered with poppies in tones of orange, buttercup and lime-yellow. One may also make the skirt of white-plaited crepe de chine and the blouse of French linen in rose, green and lavender.

Bonaparte Relic for Arlington Cemetery

A relic of the captivity and death of Napoleon Bonaparte on the island of St. Helena, is to be placed in the Arlington National cemetery. It is a cutting from a weeping willow tree planted by Cuyler Reynolds, on his estate at Alton, N. Y., in 1900, which tree was originally planted in New Jersey in 1870, as a slip from a tree planted in front of Napoleon's tomb at St. Helena in 1821. That slip was brought to the United States by Justice Charles P. Daley, at that time president of the Geographic society.

The historic cutting will be planted near "Sheridan Spring," just inside the Sheridan gateway, on the east side of the cemetery, on the military road, separating the abode of the heroic dead from the Arlington experimental farm. If it thrives it will be the only weeping willow tree within the limits of the cemetery.

AMUSEMENTS

An old phrase soon destined to come into popularity again is the well known saying, "It's the Old Army Game." Why? That's the title of W. C. Field's first starring picture for Paramount, which arrives at the Metropolitan on Tuesday.

Old-timers will testify that the phrase has nothing to do with the army. Fields himself says it means, "Never give a sucker an even break." And that just about explains it.

Remember the old circus and medicine side-shows that used to arrive in town? There was always a red-faced chap mounted on a platform who called out: "Step up, ladies and gents! See if you can tell under which shell is the pea!" Then he moved the shells around rapidly and you'd guess. Usually wrong.

Well, that's "the old army game."

"The old army game" has been practiced as long as humans have lived. They say prehistoric cavemen used to play it. Definite records show that it had a part in early Chinese history. And the Romans, at the height of their glory, were experts, in "kidding the suckers."

The exact origin of the phrase is a little indefinite. Why the army was brought in is problematical. Some say that it refers to the buck private and his lot. A buck private is popularly, if humorously, supposed to do all the work.

However, the phrase has gone beyond the limits of the army and now refers to any phase if life in which suckers appear. According to many experts, that is in just about every strata of existence.

This humorous side of American life is the basis of W. C. Fields' first picture a characterization he has made famous on the musical comedy stage. Louise Brooks is featured. Edward Sutherland directed.

PROTECT BEES FROM DRAFTY WINTER WINDS

Bees Will Wear Out as Heat Generators—They Need Protection.

Bees that have been well managed during early fall are strong enough to pass the winter successfully. The keeper must, however, see that they have proper stores and protection.

Energy is conserved if the bees are kept at the proper temperature.

The consumption of stores is also reduced with adequate protection. The less protection is given the bees the greater must be their muscular acitivity to keep warm. When spring arrives the unprotected colonies will have eaten all their stores and worn themselves out muscularly thru the winter generating heat, W. E. Dunham of the department of entomology at the Ohio State university says.

This is known as "spring dwindling." The bees die off faster than they can be replaced by the young emerging bees.

Early packing is desirable. Late packing in the fall often disorganizes the colony and the bees are likely to winter in abnormal condition. It is necessary to protect the hives from prevailing winds if the bees are wintered out of doors. A natural windbreak is best, tho an artificial one man by provided.

A high board fence helps break the winds materially. If the boards are set two or three inches apart they will break the air currents. If the boards are nailed closely the wind is turned up but it returns at once on the other side, hitting the hives with all its force.

Temperatures should be kept between 45 and 50 degrees if the bees are kept in a cellar. It is essential that the colony have a cleansing flight before it is placed in the cellar for the winter.

First Thing He Knew About the Accident

There had been a minor accident and a slight interruption in the flow of traffic. Complaint came in a stream from the mouth of the driver of a small car. The patrolman lent an ear. The young man, the victim, stood still, looking faintly amused.

When the driver had worn himself out, the patrolman turned to the young man.

"Well," he said, "you tell your side of the story."

The youth regarded him, took a cigarette from his lips, and cast it carefully into the gutter. The gesture was one of easy arrogance.

"Why," he explained, "I was crossing the street, I felt something brush me, and when I looked up I found this fellow's—er—car on my foot."

How Times Change

Jean, age ten, living in Park avenue, has been in the habit for several years of visiting her cousin Oliver in the country for a week each summer. This summer she said nothing about going. She showed none of her former enthusiasm for making the journey, and finally her mother said: "Well, Jean, how about the visit to the farm this summer?"

"Oh, I don't think I'll go," she replied.

"Why not?" asked the mother.

"Well, it's not the same town there since the good died," she said—Indianapolis News.

DERBY W. C. T. U. HELD EXCELLENT MEETING OCT. 12

The W. C. T. U. meeting which was to be held at the home of Jane Bauhan October 12, was changed on account of Mrs. Bauhan's health and her daughter, Mrs. Ruth Liston, gladly opened the doors of her home for the meeting. A good program was rendered. Twenty-nine were present. Mrs. Virgie Higgins had charge of the program.

The songs that were sung, "All Hail the Power of Jesus' Name" and "This is My Father's World." The following papers were read; Neglecting the Better Part, Mrs. Ethel Skinner; Moral Training in the Public Schools, Mrs. Irel White; Cooperation Needed to Restore the Bible to Public Schools, Mrs. Etta Tracy; The Bible in the Public Schools a Stabilizer, Mrs. Mary Wiefough; Good Citizenship, the Object of Our Public Schools Training, Mrs. Mamye Dawson;

The Bible has held its place in the public schools since the middle of the last century. It held first rank as a masterpiece of literature, and its moral receipts were inculated as of binding authority. It holds its place in the school room, not because religion needs the state to aid in its propagation, but because the state needs religion to give it security. It is the paramount work of the common school to train up the rising generation in the principles of the Bible, and to teach them social and relative duties with proper inducements to correct action. The Bible is the bulwark of our liberty. It should have a place in the public schools because it is a national and political book. Its principles of national religion and political morality are necessary for the perpetuation of the republic. It is safe to say that no constitution or law has yet been framed and adopted with the interest of excluding the Bible from our public schools.

A short sketch of the National convention was read by the secretary stating that Ohio was second with new members, 5190; New York was first, 5450 new members.

The President Mrs. Stump, appointed the following superintendents; Soldiers and Sailors, Mrs. Lizzie Edwards; child welfare, Mrs. Nelle Bauhan; national guard, Mrs. Etta Tracy; parlimentary usage, Mrs. Clara Bauhan; Christian citizenship, Mrs. Retta Riddle; flower mission and relief, Mrs. Alice Hall and Mrs. Ettie Shristensen contest work, Mrs. Bertha Graham and Mrs. Jennie Stump; L. T. L. Mrs. Irel White and Mrs. Freda Straley; anti-narcotic, Mrs. Sarah Musselman; social morality, Mrs. Louie Marshall; Sabbath observance, Mrs. Etta Graham; medical temperance, Mrs. Minnie Ridgway; Bible in public schools, Miss Dorothy Minshall and Mrs. Garnet Ridgway; evangelistic, Mrs. Hattie Smith; social meetings, Mrs. Virgie Higgins and Mrs. Minnie Ridgway; publicity, Mrs. Ruth Liston.

Mrs. Liston and assisting hostesses, Mrs. Irel White, Mrs. Nelle Mimmick and Mrs. Bertha Graham served delicious pumpkin pie and whipped cream, doughnuts and coffee to the ladies during the social hour.

EDICT WOULD END MONKISH REPUBLIC

The order of General Theodore Pangalos, deposed dictator of Greece, abolishing the "Republic of Monks" on the island of Athos, if it is carried out, will mean the passing of the most curious republic on the face of the earth. Under the order no young Greeks will be allowed to lead a contemplative life on the model of the present occupants of the island republic without women. All monks under fifty years old will be released and returned to productive society, and that will practically depopulate the island. The monks have for many years occupied cloisters and monasteries and thousands of hermits have lived in huts, caves and cabins. The chapels and crypts of the monasteries possess, besides curious religious paraphernalia, the skulls of dead members. Every skull is numbered, and a corresponding number in a ledger gives the name of the dead men. Some of these skulls have been preserved for hundreds of years, marshaled in neat rows on shelves near the altar in the chapel where their living owners once worshiped.—New York Evening World.

Woman Smokers Afflicted

Dr. Herman Prinz, professor of therapeutics at the University of Pennsylvania, says that in some parts of the Orient, where women smoke more even than the men do, they are great sufferers from cancer of the mouth. Fifty per cent of the cases of cancer of the mouth, he maintains, is caused by the use of tobacco.

THOS. AMBROSE WRITES A GOOD HOMEY LETTER

From Preston, Washington Was Former Resident of Darbyville.

Thomas S. Ambrose, a former resident of Darbyville, writes a most interesting letter to the editor of the Union-Herald from Preston, Washington. The writer attended the Centennial, which was held recently.

Editor Union-Herald:— "Having received so many inquiries from your readers about matters in Washington, I thought I would answer them thru your columns, if you will allow me the space.

"First, as to agricultural opportunities, I must say they are not so plentiful now as they will be in a few years when more irrigation projects are opened up, and more people come to engage in manufacturing and other industries and provide a demand for more agricultural products. Washington has vast hydro-electric power resources, enough to furnish power for most of the nations manufactories and in my opinion in time vast industries will move their plants where they can get such abundant, perpetual cheap power, such as exist in this state.

"Washington is well served by five great railways and their branch lines and Western Washington is served by several oceanic lines of transportation to Alaska, Asia, Australia, South America and Europe by way Panama Canal, and great quantities of Washington wheat, apples, lumber and fish are sent to many parts of the world, so manufactured articles and raw materials can be easily sent out or brought in.

"As to climate, no state in the Union, possesses a more mild, equable and delightful climate than Washington. We suffer very little from heat or cold, and sleep under blankets every night in the year.

"As to educational advantages, Washington ranks among the first states in the Union in that regard, the common schools, high schools, agricultural college, normal schools and university being given adequate financial support by taxation. Washington has about a hundred million dollar's worth of public lands to be sold and the money put into a permanent school fund only the income of which can be used to support the schools. Much of the lands are covered by the finest timber in the nation, the value of which will greatly increase as forests decrease elsewhere. Big timber companies have been getting much of the school timber at a very low price, until 'our present Governor Roland H. Hartley, got into office, and has stopped the sale of it at any price. He has also tried to stop the waste of taxpayer's money, as he promised to do before he was elected. He removed university regents and put others in their places who removed the president of the State university, which so angered citizens of Seattle and others that a movement has been started to recall the governor from office in the middle of his four year term, so Washington may take the palm from Ohio for exciting political campaigns. I sympathize with and support Governor Hartley because heads of this state' higher educational institutions are often chosen and kept according to their ability to get large appropriations from the state legislature for their respective institutions, even over the governor's veto and taxpayers protests. By vote trading or 'log rolling,' they get large appropriations, more than taxpayers can afford.

"I have long believed that presidents of the nation should be selected from among the ablest governors of states because of their administrative and executive experience and training.

"I should have liked to have seen the contest in 1920 fought out between Governor Lowden of Illinois and Governor Cox, of Ohio, and should like to see the contest of 1928 fought out between former Governor Lowden and Governor Smith or Governor Ritchie, of Maryland.

"In my opinion Mr. Lowden would carry every state but New York, New Jersey, Connecticut, Massachusetts, and Maryland in a campaign against Governor Smith. I do not think people in the east realize how lightly party ties rest upon the people of the middle west and far west, and how they are loosening up in the south.

"Former Governor Lowden is one of the ablest, cleanest and strongest men the west has ever produced, and is about the only Republican the west and south would both support, because of his first hand knowledge of their problems and needs. My study of ancient, medieval and modern history, [illegible] observations all over this country, convince me that neither this nation nor any other nation in all the world's history, ever had such a material prosperity as we now have.

"Our agricultural depression in some sections and our spiritual powerty in all sections are to be deplored and corrected.

Agriculture is an art, a business and a science the oldest, noblest and most honorable and indispensable of all human occupations. The agriculturists patent of nobility dates back to the Garden of Eden, and the time has come in the history of this nation when the voice of agriculture must be the dominant one in the affairs of the Republic.

"I am glad to see that the editors of small and great newspapers alike, give sympathetic ears to the demands of the egriculturist, and is Senator Chappelear of the Union-Herald has rendered faithful service to all the interests of Pickaway and Franklin counties, and the state at large, I feel it is the duty of agriculturists of both parties to return him. Faithful service ought to be considered before partisanship.

"An old man had been postmaster in a town for forty years under the administrations of both parties. Someone asked him how that came. He replied; 'The administration can't change any quicker than I can.'

"When I was a boy, agriculturists of ability were honored above all others and the Florences, Renicks, Scotts, Carpenters, Gulicks, Hills, Dennison, Thomas, Hotts, Hoovers and other pioneers in agriculture in my sections were looked up to by all. I felt highly honored when agriculturists in this state elected me a member of their Farm bureau, overseer of their grang and secretary-treasurer of their Federal Loan association. I felt almost as highly honored as I did nearly forty years ago, when I was a delegate to the Republican county convention at Circleville, and Colonel Charles E. Groce, was chairman. He looked out over the more than a hundred delegates and said, 'I name Mr. Thomas Ambrose, of Muhlenberg township, as secretary of this convention.' The colonel will never realize what a thrill that gave me. The last time I saw him he had charge of Senator Harding's headquarters at the Congress hotel in Chicago, in June, 1920, receiving delegates and visitors with such a friendly smile, greeting, and handshake, that I think he had a great deal to do with Senator Harding's nomination. I hope he is well and happy, and that I get to see him again sometime."

x HARTMAN THEATER. x x x x x x x x x

At last "Castles in the Air" has forsaken Chicago, where it ran for 47 weeks at the Olympic theater. With Donald Brian, Roy Copper and Virginia O'Brien at the head of the Chicago organization, this enormous musical comedy success will occupy the Hartman theater for three days beginning Thursday, November 4. Successful as it was in Chicago, "Castles in the Air" with another company, has again scored at the Selwyn theater, New York and now the whole country has extended its arms to the reigning box office triumph. In the local announcement, everybody concerned stresses the immediate success of this show in Columbus last November when it was called "Land of Romance." There were one or two minor defects in the cast at the time, but that was easily remedied and overlooked in the outstanding possessions of a gorgeous show property. Columbus was unanimous in acclaiming the now "Castles in the Air" and there were hundreds of "I told you so's" when the piece shortly afterward set Chicago on its toes. Besides Brian, Cropper and O'Brien, the Chicoga organization booked here includes Walter Law, Genevieve McCormick, John T. Dwyer, Betty Marvin, Dortohy Wilkins, Joseph Granby, Benedict MacQuarie, George A. Weller, John Ehrle, Cecil Butterfield, J. Harry Jenkins and Antionette Mack, all names that have first call from the big casting directors.

Presented by James W. Elliott, who as a producer has flashed high across the theatrical horizon, "Castles in the Air" is an expert combination and blend of dramatics, song and dance, made beautiful with costumes and scenery of a variety and richness heretofore seen only in the bigger revues. A great organization of 150 singers, dancers and comi c folk occupies the stage. The music written by Percy Wenrick carries all the delicacy and charm that one always associotes with his works, which in this case tre "Lantern of Love," "Baby" "First Kiss," "Land of Romance" and "Latavia." Highly original and bizarre dancing effects devised by John Boyle and Julian Mitchell are afforded with a chorus of sixty or more.

RAINY WEATHER IS FAVORABLE TO PARASITES

The stomach worm in sheep is worse than it has been any time the past summer. The warm damp fall has been ideal for its development.

Unless the flock is treated late this month or early in November the sheep will go thru the winter harboring the worms in their digestive system. This is a severe drain on the vitality of the animal, L. A. Kauffman, extension specialist at the Ohio State university points out. During the late winter and early spring where the infestation is serious many of the weakly constituted sheep die.

Copper sulfate or nicotine sulfate is recommended for eliminating the worm from the sheep. If the flock is heavily infested it may pay the shepherd to treat a second time the later part of November.

The warm weather has made it possible for the parasite to complete its life cycle about once every three weeks. In dry or cool weather this is much slower. Seven mnoths of freezing weather, Mr. Kauffman says, have not killed them in their resting stage. The only safe way to get a pasture rid of the worms is to keep sheep out of it for about a year and a half. In this time they will stare out. Then can only live where they can develop in the digestive tract of the sheep.

The eggs hatches the worm in a short time after it is voided by the sheep. It lies on the ground in the resting stage until it either crawls or is washed up on a blade of grass. Sheep eat it with the grass in this resting period. In ten days there is a full grown stomach worm in the sheep's stomach. The worm lays eggs and the entire process repeats itself as long as there are sheep present in which the worms can reach maturity.

MONDAY CLUB STUUY POTTERY AND CEREMICS

With the study of Ceramics, October 25, the Monday club now has an insight into the departmental work of the year and can visualize the good things that are to follow in "Modern American Poetry," "History," "Opera" and Ceramics. Each has its charm as well as intellectual value.

The forming of vessels or utensils of any sort out of clay is of high antiquity, being practiced among races in prehistoric times. Th the various kinds of pottery and porcelain differ from each other in detail of their manufacture, yet the foundation the clay proper is the gift of Mother Earth.

Miss Littleton, chairman of the Ceramic department, presided and interestingly told of the origin of pottery. Miss Florence Hoffman described the "Pottery of Mound Builders" and "Indian Pottery" Miss Yates the "Pottery of the Pacific States" and Mrs. W. L. Mack "Pottery of the Mississippi Valley." Miss Yates interspersed her paper with illustrations and Miss Hoffman displayed a specimen of the art of the Mound Builders loaned her by Attorney Barton Walters and which is a part of his valuable collection. In connection with Mrs. Mack's paper mention was made of the the specimens of Charles Lewis said to be one of the most valuable in central Ohio. Many of these came from his own farm in the historic Pickaway Plains.

Mrs. Anderson, Mrs. Nickerson and Mrs. Ritz, each gave an interesting description of the convention of federated clubs held in Nelsonville and of the acceptance of the convention to meet in Circleville in 1927. A part of club work in which the public is invited to participate is the musical at Memorial hall November 4, by the Chillicothe Choral society under the direction of Mrs. Maxwell.

Muscle Has Red Cells

The muscles of the human body, it has recently been discovered, are filled with a red coloring substance almost identical with that in the red blood cells of the blood. The amount of this red substance seems to determine largely the power of the muscle and it disappears rapidly if the muscle is paralyzed, thus showing the importance of exercising in keeping the muscles in trim.

The Opened Doors

By DUFORD JANNE

"WHY, child, you have been weeping!"

Winnifred looked up at the gray, kind eyes of the girl who had just entered the bedroom. The friendly interest in the gray eyes stirred the younger girl to answer.

"I have been, Agnes. I am just desperately lonely. You girls in the house are all good to me, but I just seem to be out of things," Winnifred answered, the tears coming again into her dark eyes.

The oldest girl in Mrs. McCarthy's homelike boarding house, Agnes, guessed the situation. "Tell me about it, honey," she said gently.

Winnifred told—all about her coming to the city where she knew no one to take a position in the importing office, made up of men who had grown gray in the business. She told Agnes that no one seemed to take an interest in her; that she heard the girls going out with their friends. "I know I am homely with my turned-up nose and straw-colored hair. If I only were attractive perhaps—" Winnifred did not finish the sentence.

Agnes slipped her capable arms about the slight shoulders. "I just came in to tell you that Will Jackson wants you to go with him and the rest of our crowd to a dance at the park—"

"No! Is it true?"

"Every word of it! Now, dear, let me take you under my wing. You have a turned-up nose and your hair is—never mind, the point is, you dress your hair in just the wrong way. Your cheeks and your eyes are pretty, but you must give 'em a chance. Every girl has some strong points, but she's got to find them and dress for them. The men do the same. If a man has red hair, do you ever find him wearing a purple tie? I guess not! You leave it to me!" Agnes said in her whole-hearted way.

Agnes' fine taste and knowledge had worked a miracle.

The end of it was, that on the evening of the park dance, Winnifred stood before the mirror in Agnes' room. She took one look, then whirled and threw her arms around Agnes' neck. "Why, I'm almost pretty!" she gasped.

Agnes laughed. "You are pretty but all I have done is to show you your real self."

The straw-colored hair had been so arranged that it emphasized the curve of her cheeks and brought out the deep color of her eyes and gave a cheery air to her deceiving nose.

When later, she met Will in the reception room, his sober, handsome face brightened, quickly, and in a way that sent a little thrill through Winnifred. She had often seen him at the house, and his pleasant smile and greeting had been a bright spot for her, even if it was the same smile he gave others. Tonight the smile was different.

But it was in the dancing that she was happiest. All the hours she spent learning to dance, for dancing had not been easy for her, were rewarded then. In Jackson's strong arms, she felt like a feather wafted here and there to the time of joyous music. Other men in the group came to her for dances, and they seemed to enjoy the dancing with her.

The hours went on, the happiest she believed she had ever known. Jackson bribed some of the men to give up dances scheduled with her.

Then she heard the comment of one of the girls in the confusion of securing their wraps and donning them:

"Yes, I know, but Agnes simply made Will Jackson take her. I know because I was in the room when Agnes planned the thing—"

Winnifred heard no more. It seemed as if the floor sank beneath her. Will had been made to go with her.

She was brave. She chatted with Will all the gay ride back, hiding her painful embarrassment. And he was kind to her—but it seemed now to be the kindness of one who is willing to sacrifice himself for another's enjoyment.

She made the good-by as brief as she could, even though he seemed to want to linger. Then she rushed to her little back room, stared at the wall with unseeing eyes, while she tried to bring order in her disordered house of dreams.

Then Agnes came in. Her gray, fine eyes were smiling. Winnifred told her what she had overheard.

Agnes kissed the strained lips. "You heard Bess with her feather-brains. She has it twisted, dear. Will Jackson wanted me to induce you to go; I didn't make him. You've been so shy and—and odd, I guess he thought it would need me. You see, we did not realize you were lonely. Now, look, didn't he ask you the last thing to go to the theater? He did and you said no? Now, look again, midget, you come with me to the phone. Will is sensitive, too. He certainly was happy with you tonight. Come!"

"But I—"

Agnes had her way. She saw the small head laid to the receiver as a wavering voice called and answered another voice. Then Agnes saw the color deepen in the round cheek as something was said into the small ear. When Winnifred turned, the stars were again in her eyes.

"What did he say?" Agnes asked smiling.

Winnifred put her arms around the other girl's neck, and said, half with tears, half with laughter: "Oh, it's—something too nice to tell!"

WARNING

The evening of October 31, is celebrated in many countries, including the good old U. S. A., as Hallowe'en, the evening preceding All Saints' Day, in merrymaking with playful ceremonies and charms to discover future husbands or wives.

We would appreciate it very much if our young folks, would confine their joy-making to the proper evening, and refrain from any pranks that are in violation of our city ordinances, such as marking windows with soap, throwing missiles at doors that are apt to break glass, removing property from one place to another, destruction of fences, shutters, flower pots, etc. Such violators, if apprehended, will be prosecuted. Parents can assist our department very much by cautioning their children in what can and cannot be done legally. We want all to enjoy the occasion but in the right spirit.

U. S. SUPREME COURT

Decided Case Against the City of Toledo.

Washington, Oct. 25.—(UP.)—The City of Toledo, Ohio, today was denied by the U. S. Supreme Court a review of the injunction suit brought against it by the Maumee Valley Electric Company, in which lower courts restrained the city from interfering with the flow of water through the abandoned Miami and Erie Canal between Toledo and Maumee, on the ground that the company was entitled to use the water for private power under lease obtained from the State.

The city bought the canal in 1920 for $300,000 and started to divert the water for its own use, when the company brought suit, alleging it had a vested right to the water.

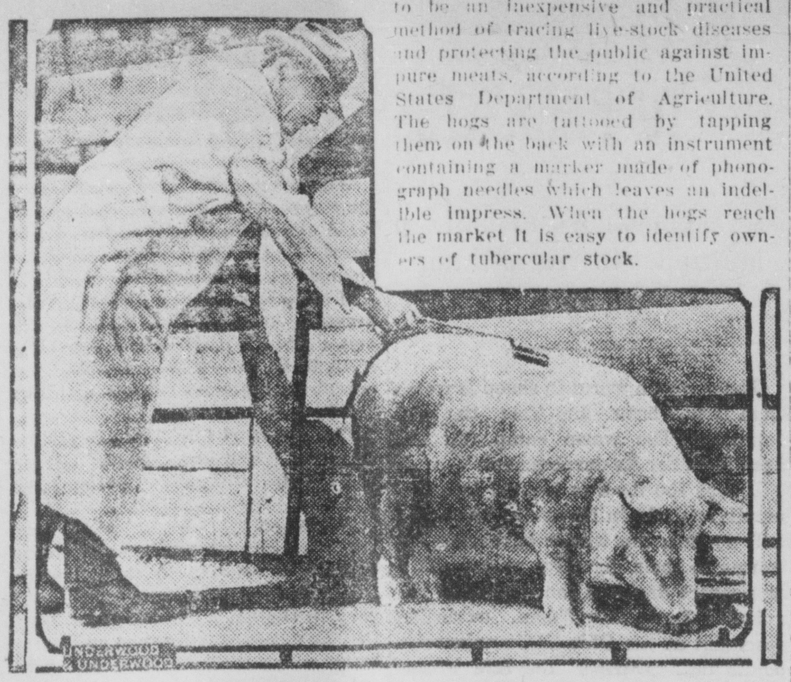
Tattoo Hogs to Trace Diseased Stock



Tattooing of hogs has been found to be an inexpensive and practical method of tracing live-stock diseases and protecting the public against impure meats, according to the United States Department of Agriculture. The hogs are tattooed by tapping them on the back with an instrument containing a marker made of phonograph needles which leaves an indelible impress. When the hogs reach the market it is easy to identify owners of tubercular stock.

1925 Yearbook Is Distributed

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

The 1925 Yearbook of the Department of Agriculture, which is the fifth and last of a series inaugurated under the direction of the late Henry C. Wallace, is now being distributed. The preceding volumes of this series, which deal primarily with the economic aspects of agriculture, have covered in a comprehensive manner the subjects of live stock, grains, dairy products, tobacco, forestry, forage resources, fibers, land utilization and land tenure, highways, credit, taxation, the poultry industry, and the weather forecasting.

The present volume discusses the fruit and vegetable industry, contains the secretary's annual report to the President, and more than half of its 1,500 pages are given over to agricultural statistics.

Agriculture Harassed.

"In the five years covered by the series of yearbooks now concluded," said Secretary Jardine in announcing the 1925 volume, "American agriculture has been harassed as never before. Farmers have been handicapped by disparities between the prices of things they have had to sell and the things they have had to buy. They have been faced with urgent crop readjustment problems and with a decrease occasioned by overstocked and demoralized markets. The economic studies contained in this series of yearbooks were expressly intended to assist farmers in coping with such problems and difficulties. There is reason to believe that they have accomplished this subject. Although the present volume deals with a branch of agriculture that has been less affected than some other branches by the post-war depression, the fruit and vegetable industry is not without present economic problems. I hope this yearbook may help it to deal with such problems effectively."

The articles on fruits and vegetables in this volume include historical material relating to fruit and vegetable growing in this country.

Questions Answered.

The value of the 1925 book is not limited to the fruit and vegetable interests. In 772 pages of statistics may be found the answers to numerous questions arising in the minds of various agricultural interests.

The agricultural yearbook is published under a special congressional appropriation. The distribution of the 400,000 copies published will be made largely by congressmen and senators, each of whom is allotted about 360 copies. The 20,000 copies purchased by the Department of Agriculture will be allotted to the various bureaus in the department for distribution to their field representatives and co-operators. Persons who are not on the list of some bureau or for any reason cannot secure a copy from a representative in congress, can purchase the yearbook from the Superintendent of Public Documents, Government Printing Office, Washington, D. C.

Rye for Early Pasture Should Be Sown in Fall

If early spring pasture is wanted for hogs, sow rye this fall, says the Indiana Farmers' Guide. Some vetch can be used with it to advantage. If sown as soon as the land can be prepared after the wheat, oats or corn are out of the way, it will come on early next spring. A bushel and a half of seed is enough for early sowing, but 2 bushels per acre should be used later. If vetch is used with rye, from 30 to 40 pounds of rye and 15 to 20 pounds of vetch are about the right amounts.

Small fields of such crops furnish a great deal of pasture at little expense and leave the soil in better condition than if they had not been grown. The vetch is a legume which adds nitrogen and the fine roots of the rye protect the soil against washing which is more serious between growing seasons than most people realize. Next spring the rye can be turned under as a green manuring crop before corn planting time.

Tree Planting By Community Effort

Greatly Enhances Looks and Comfort of Roads.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

Suitable tree planting along public highways, which greatly enhances their appearance and comfort, is most satisfactorily done by the community as a whole rather than by individuals, says the United States Department of Agriculture. Interest in country highways in the United States has increased rapidly during the last few years. The greater interest in rural roads is due largely to the growing automobile traffic, a large part of which is pleasure driving in which the most beautiful routes are naturally sought.

While a few states have good laws providing for such planting, the remainder have either indifferent ones or none at all, according to Farmers' Bulletin 1481-F, "Planting the Roadside," just issued.

The traveling public has as much interest in the appearance of the road as a whole as the adjoining property holder. Furthermore, it is usually difficult to get each property holder to approve and act on a given plan. For these reasons, says the department, it is best to place the planting and subsequent care of roadside trees in the hands of a public body representing some such division as the state, county, town, township or parish, rather than smaller units.

Because of the intimate relationship between road construction and maintenance and the upkeep of the roadside, the closest co-operation between the highway department and those having the trees in charge is needed.

Suggestions relative to planning for the trees, planting and spacing them, kinds to plant, pruning, arrangement of shrubs and perennials, and other phases of the work are given.

A copy of the new publication may be obtained free, as long as the supply lasts, upon application to the United States Department of Agriculture, Washington, D. C.

Whitewash for Various Buildings Easily Made

Take one-half bushel of unslaked lime, slake it with boiling water, cover during the process to keep in steam. Strain the liquid through a fine sieve or strainer and add to it seven pounds of fine salt previously dissolved in warm water. Also add three pounds of rice boiled to a thin paste and stirred in while hot, half a pound of spanish whiting and one pound of glue previously dissolved by soaking in cold water and then hanging over the fire in a small pot hung in a larger one filled with water. Add five gallons of hot water to the mixture, stir well and let stand a few days covered to protect from dirt. It should be applied hot; for which purpose it can be kept in a portable furnace.

FARM NOTES

Cows that will freshen this fall will pay later if you give them good care now.

When all the cows have had the tuberculosis test, then all the world will be doubly blessed.

Some farmers say that personal preference is the first factor to consider in choosing a breed of swine to raise.

If your farm grew paintbrush and daisies this past season, it probably needs lime. Fall is a good time to spread it.

Records and accounts are as important on a farm as they are in a wholesale grocery business. Are you keeping a set of accounts?

JAMES A. BOWMAN

Aged 68 Years, Died From Effects of Apoplexy Saturday, in Clearcreek Valley Timberland.

James Albert Bowman, aged 68 years, of Clearcreek township, Fairfield County, in company with his seven-year-old grandson, Saturday, went to cut timber on the neighboring farm of J. Hines. He cut and loaded a wagon in one hour, after which he climbed to the top of the load, where he suffered a stroke of apoplexy, dying instantly.

Deceased lived for many years near Clearport. Besides his wife, he is survived by one daughter, Mrs. Ralph Kocher, of Clearport, and four sons. Four brothers also survive, namely, Jacob, of Pickaway County; George, of Stoutsville; John, of Athens, and Wesley, of Oregon.

Funeral services were conducted at 10 o'clock this morning at Hopewell Church, by Rev. Stump, interment was made in Stoutsville cemetery.

Crops and Weeds

Generally speaking, the larger the crops the fewer the weeds present. This is especially true with small grain and hay, since good stands of these crops will tend to smother out weeds. Furthermore, pastures that are given good care by top dressings with fertilizers free from weed seeds and by close but not destructive grazing always contain fewer weeds and more grass than those poorly managed.

Named From Human Body

The Anglo-Saxons gave names to many localities from the supposed resemblance to parts of the human body, as, headland, a neck of land, a tongue of land, the mouth of a river, the brow of a hill, the foot of a hill, an arm of the sea, and so on. Battersea was once known as Peter's eye, or Peter's island; Chelsea was Sheles-eye, and Bermondsey was Bermonds-eye, all of them having been originally islands.

HOWARD HALL POST

And Unit Making Arrangements For Card Party and Dance.

The card party and dance which Howard Hall Post and unit are making arrangements to give on the evening of November 26th, which will be the Friday after Thanksgiving, promises to be the outstanding social affair of the season. This date has been reserved by the Legion for some time and other organizations in the community have arranged their social affairs that they would not conflict with this party. The Post and unit were both very proud of the success that attended their first attempt which was sponsored last Spring and they have been asked to give a similar one as the success was apparent to those who participated as well as the beneficiaries.

At the meeting last evening which followed the regular meeting of the auxiliary, the executive committee of unit and the Commander, Jos. M. Lynch and Adjutant C. C. Schwarz arranged committees and made some general plans. Mack Parrett Jr. is corresponding with several very good orchestras and the public is promised a real treat in that feature. The name of the orchestra which will be engaged will be announced later.

Plans were also formed for the banquet on Armistice Day which is also an annual affair, when the new officers of the local Post will be installed and a speaker for the occasion will be arranged for. It is hoped that Mr. T. S. Pattison of the Ross County Post can be secured as Mrs. Pattison will address the meeting that evening when she will read her report from the National convention.

This arrangement was made after the Post had invited the unit to participate in the Armistice Day ceremonies and they also plan to ask Mrs. Segal of the same unit to give an address on Americanism.

A letter from Mrs. Virginia Thatcher, District Hospital chairman was read at the meeting last evening and also a message from the new State president. Mrs. Frogley. The District chairman, Mrs. Knappenberger also wrote the unit and urged them to attend the district conference at Newark on November 15th. She also extended an invitation to the local secretary to act as assistant secretary at the conference.

The card party and dance on November 26th will be the Thanksgiving dance to which the community at large is invited. In former years the affair at this time was known as the Charity Ball and was very successfully carried on for several years. However all organizations stepping aside this year permits the Legion the opportunity to permit persons from all walks of life to participate in this affair. The tickets will be sold for the nominal price of 50 cents which is within the reach of all.

Age of Luxuries

Not to be entirely outdone by reports of purchases of solid gold dinner plates at very high prices, a special order has just been placed in New York by a certain woman for teaspoons of the solid metal at $500 a dozen. In another case an order has been sent in to a well-known concern in New York calling for six fancy goblets wrought in solid gold. Just what they will cost the purchaser was not known, as the price had not been calculated for the style of goblet wanted. That this is a minor factor in the transaction, however, is indicated by the fact that the order was "signed, sealed and delivered" by the purchaser on the assurance of the selling house that it could be executed as desired.

AN APPLE A DAY

In the early pioneer days, through the Miami and Ohio Valleys and far to the North, East, South and West, a strange spirit wandered through the wilderness planting apple seeds here, there and everywhere. The Indians knew him, molesting him not at all. They thought the Manitou had touched him with the "sacred" simpleness. The early hardy settlers knew him for a friend, a transcended man, but his vision—if, indeed, the wildest dreams of future days, was dreamed at all. What with the hardships and rigors of the primeval forest and the menace of the savage always hovering at his foe—had little time for dreams—they Johnny Appleseed dreamed. But dreams, planting his precious seeds far and wide, giving warning betimes to the settlers that danger threatened from foray of the native enemy.

So the bloom and fruitage of the apple came to bless the new lands of the pioneers. Today the average annual exports of apples are in excess of 9,000,000 bushels and are distributed to nearly a hundred different countries throughout the world, according to reports of the United States Department of Commerce.

This week people who "have it in" for the family physician can contribute to his discomfiture by consuming their apple a day, or more, according to the measure of their needs, as a sort of tribute to the paternal wisdom of the Department of Agriculture which has cannonized the apple as worthy a place in the calendar of national celebrations.

Apple Week may be celebrated with some considerable feeling of patriotic fervor. It should bring pleasant memories of pink and white blossoms, the song of birds and sheen of sun; memories of golden pies and amber cider all undefiled by the chemist's mystic potions—of Hallowe'en and many-voiced laughter.— Cincinnati Enquirer.

Jones and Matthias Have Upheld The Compensation Act

COLUMBUS (Special). — "The activities of insurance companies in behalf of Harry L. Conn for Supreme Court Judge should be carefully weighed by the voters," the Judicial Bureau of the Republican State Headquarters, declared in a statement issued today.

"A Cincinnati newspaper, which is supporting the candidacy of Mr. Conn for the Supreme Court, in a recent issue stated that Conn's campaign is being 'conducted by a committee consisting of representatives of large insurance companies.' It gives the names of 22 representatives of the largest insurance companies in America as the active members of the committee pushing Conn's candidacy.

"A trade paper in a recent issue es that 'Insurance men all over of are working for the election L. ance commissioner, Harry of the who is running for Judge tage to me Court. The advanso well ve iness of having one Supreme Be insurance on the forth.' Then its clearly set letter written by a copy of a inent insurance m ally promm 15,000 insurance agen sent to urging them to get bus state, "Why should any speci onn. so much desire to have a re st tative on the highest court state. Have 'the large insura companies' still some hope that they can emasculate the Workmen's Compensation Law and start premiums again into their own tills?

"The Workmen's Compensation Law has been upheld repeatedly by Supreme Court and no judge has done more to sustain it than Judges Thomas A. Jones and Edward S. Matthias, who are candidates for re-election."

The Money and the Girl

By H. IRVING KING

(Copyright.)

GORDON DAVIS had very little money of his own, but he had a wealthy aunt and a wealthy uncle, both childless, who hated each other but doted on Gordon. Both Aunt Clotilda and Uncle James wanted their nephew to make his home with them, but to have taken up his abode with either one would have been tantamount to resigning all expectation of being the heir of the other, so Gordon kept bachelor apartments and preserved a difficult neutrality. When Aunt Clotilda arrived at the conviction that Gordon was old enough to be married she picked out a girl for him. Uncle James heard of it and promptly picked out another girl.

"You marry Emily Sellinger," said the aunt, "and when I die every cent I have shall be yours. If you marry that Caroline Branxome that disreputable old uncle of yours has picked out for you, you shall never have a penny of mine."

"When I die," said the uncle, "all my property—and that's no inconsiderable fortune, I can tell you—will be yours, Gordon, if you marry to suit me. If you marry the girl that crabbed old maid of an aunt of yours has picked out, you need expect nothing from me." And there Gordon was! Obviously he could not marry both the girls and, even if polygamy had been allowable, he would have been no better off, for the one marriage would have offset the other and he would have lost both the fortunes, which, since the death of his parents when he was a boy, he had been brought up to expect one day to be his.

He must choose, but to do so would he knew, mortally offend one of his relatives. Then, again, he did not want to marry either Emily or Caroline. Good enough, girls, but not the sort he would have chosen had he been free. So he temporized, and both the aunt and the uncle increased their cash bonuses to him in the hopes of winning him to their side—and their girl. Which enabled Gordon to enjoy life immensely for awhile, although he knew that at the end of the primrose path was awaiting the fatal decision which he must make at last. Then what did he do but go and complicate matters still more by falling in love with Rosa Moorefield. But when it "came down to cases" Rosa hesitated. She knew all the circumstances and felt that she had no right to accept from the man she loved a sacrifice of all his worldly expectations. Gordon raved. He felt that Rosa didn't really love him or she would not act so contrary. Let Aunt Clotilda and Uncle James keep their old money—he guessed he was young enough, and had brains enough, to make his own way in the world and support a wife in the making of it. If Rosa wouldn't have him he would go away and enlist in the Foreign Legion or go out as a missionary to Tibet, or turn monk and end his life amid the snows of the Great Saint Bernard—or do something else that would make Rosa regret her cruelty all the rest of her days. Rosa wept copiously, but remained obdurate. Her conduct so aroused Gordon that he proclaimed publicly that he would marry her in spite of herself and in defiance of all the uncles and aunts in Christendom. Mrs. Potter, who just reveled in mixing herself up in other people's affairs, went off to Aunt Clotilda the minute she heard the news.

"Yes," said Miss Clotilda, very pale and very frigid, "I heard of it this morning. Gordon is an ungrateful boy. We will not discuss the matter further."

"Oh, certainly not," replied Mrs. Potter; "I only mentioned it because I hear that his Uncle James is simply furious—is going to cut Gordon off without a cent. Good morning; I must be going." And she hurried right off to Uncle James. This promised to be a "perfect day" with her. Uncle James looked like a thunder-cloud in a frock coat. He had heard the news some hours before and was considering what he could say most scathing to his nephew in the letter in which he proposed to cast him off.

"I have just come from Miss Clotilda's," said Mrs. Potter. "I am afraid the shock of Gordon's conduct is going to be too much for her. She looked awfully upset. She's mad clear through and is going to disown him."

"Hum, hum," said Uncle James. "Gordon's conduct has been—er—most reprehensible."

Off trotted Mrs. Potter to retail her news at somebody's "five o'clock."

"So James is going to cut Gordon off, is he? The old brute; that's just like him," thought Miss Clotilda. "Well, I'll put a spoke in his wheel. Won't he be raving when he finds I have taken Gordon's part?"

And when Mrs. Potter had vanished from before Uncle James that plutocratic person thought: "So old Tildy is furious, is she? Going to disown the boy. Well, just to plague the woman, I'll tell Gordon it's all right."

And thus it came about that Gordon received two letters by the evening mail approving of his choice of Rosa and urging an early marriage. It was all due, of course, to Mrs. Potter; but she got no thanks for it.

EMERSON BROS. HAVE GOOD PUBLIC SALE

George H., and Thomas Emerson held a public sale of their surplus farm chattels Tuesday, on their farm in Pickaway township. The attendance was very good, bidding spirited and prices received were very good on the average.

Some of the maximum prices were as follows; cow and calf $112.50; team of horses $237.50; steers $86.25; brood sows, $43.50; 50 pound shoats $13; feeding hogs $21.60; ewes $15.25; buck $26; corn $1.16 per shock, farming implements, machinery, etc., in about the same proportion.

The sale totaled $4965.18.

The Logan Elm Grange fed the hungry and did an excellent business; their entire supply of food stuff being sold before the sale closed.

Colonel C. G. Chalfin auctioneered and Hummel & Griner, clerked.

Emerson Brothers have sold their farm to M. F. Reiche of this city and have purchased the Riley Bitzer farm in the same township and will remove to same some time during the next week.

Samuel McKenzie, who has tenanted the Ruggles estate in Pickaway township for the past fifteen years, will move to the Reiche farm.

Insects Unsubdued

It is estimated that the total damage every year in the United States caused by a few species of insects amounts to more than $1,250,000,000, notwithstanding our increasing knowledge of the habits of insects and investigations of new methods of controlling the injurious species. The economic loss due to insects seems to be increasing, in spite of the intelligence of man.

New Whole Wheat Bread Scores Hit With Local Folks

A new whole wheat bread, declared to be better than anything else of the sort ever put on the market is being manufactured and sold by The Fritz Steam Bakery. It is made from the famous Enright flour, the Fritz Bakery having the exclusive rights to the making and selling of bread produced from it.

"The reason," The Fritz Steam Bakery says "that this new bread is proving so popular is due to the fact that it is made from a very superior grade of flour. Not only is it popular for its tasty flavor, but many physicians consider it of a very real value as a health food. Doctors are recommending it for those who suffer from stomach trouble. Everybody who has tested of it so far has been well satisfied." Price ten cents a loaf.

MOVIE OWNER BECOMES INSANE AND KILLS SELF

After Trying to Kill the Man From Whom He Purchased Theater.

Two men dead, one wounded, and seven injured Wednesday was the toll of a grudge which Albert Schmidt, owner of a Chicago theater, bore against Samuel Wertheimer, former proprietor of the playhouse.

Tuesday night Schmidt invited Wertheimer into the basement of his theater to show him how a ventilating system operated in the basement. Schmidt pulled a revolver, shot twice at Wertheimer and then killed himself.

A few minutes later an automobile containing one of seven squads of police which were answering a riot call to the show was wrecked in a collision. Policeman Walter Reilly was killed in the wreck and his companions, Officers Thomas Alcock and George Hennesy were seriously injured. The driver of the other car, Cecil Chapel, his wife and two children, were also injured.

The quarrel between Wertheimer and Schmidt was the result of the sale of the show Wertheimer told police. He sair that after buying the show from him, Schmidt expressed dissatisfaction because the business was not paying as much as he thought it would. Then, Wertheimer said, Schmidt tried to get him to call the deal off.

Wertheimer said he went to the theater Tuesday night when Schmidt called and told him he would like to show him the workings of the ventilating system.

Caves of Elephanta

Not far from Bombay, India, are the famous caves of Elephanta. Elephanta is an island long held as a sacred place by orientals. The name was given by the Portuguese from a colossal sculpture of an elephant. A series of subterranean temples are hewn right out of the solid rock. Columns of the natural rock are left standing to support the roof, says the Cleveland Plain Dealer.

HARTMAN THEATER.

At last "Castles in the Air" has forsaken Chicago, where it ran for 47 weeks at the Olympic theater. With Donald Brian, Roy Copper and Virginia O'Brien at the head of the Chicago organization, this enormous musical comedy success will occupy the Hartman theater for three days beginning Thursday, November 4. Successful as it was in Chicago, "Castles in the Air" with another company, has again scored at the Selwyn theater, New York and now the whole country has extended its arms to the reigning box office triumph. In the local announcement, everybody concerned stresses the immediate success of this show in Columbus last November when it was called "Land of Romance." There were one or two minor defects in the cast at the time, but that was easily remedied and overlooked in the outstanding possessions of a gorgeous show property. Columbus was unanimous in acclaiming the now "Castles in the Air" and there were hundreds of "I told you so's" when the piece shortly afterward set Chicago on its toes. Besides Brian, Cropper and O'Brien, the Chicoga organization booked here includes Walter Law, Genevieve McCormick, John T. Dwyer, Betty Marvin, Dortohy Wilkins, Joseph Granby, Benedict MacQuarie, George A. Weller, John Ehrle, Cecil Butterfield, J. Harry Jenkins and Antionette Mack, all names that have first call from the big casting directors.

Presented by James W. Elliott, who as a producer has flashed high across the theatrical horizon, "Castles in the Air" is an expert combination and blend of dramatics, song and dance, made beautiful with costumes and scenery of a variety and richness heretofore seen only in the bigger revues. A great organization of 150 singers, dancers and comi c folk occupies the stage. The music written by Percy Wenrick carries all the delicacy and charm that one always associotes with his works, which in this case tre "Lantern of Love," "Baby" "First Kiss," "Land of Romance" and "Latavia." Highly origiral and bizarre dancing effects devised by John Boyle and Julian Mitchell are afforded with a chorus of sixty or more.

RAINY WEATHER IS FAVORABLE TO PARASITES

The stomach worm in sheep is worse than it has been any time the past summer. The warm damp fall has been ideal for its development.

Unless the flock is treated late this month or early in November the sheep will go thru the winter harboring the worms in their digestive system. This is a severe drain on the vitality of the animal, L. A. Kauffman, extension specialist at the Ohio State university points out. During the late winter and early spring where the infestation is serious many of the weakly constituted sheep die.

Copper sulfate or nicotine sulfate is recommended for eliminating the worm from the sheep. If the flock is heavily infested it may pay the shepherd to treat a second time the later part of November.

The warm weather has made it possible for the parasite to complete its life cycle about once every three weeks. In dry or cool weather this is much slower. Seven mnoths of freezing weather, Mr. Kauffman says, have not killed them in their resting stage. The only safe way to get a pasture rid of the worms is to keep sheep out of it for about a year and a half. In this time they will stare out. Then can only live where they can develop in the digestive tract of the sheep.

The eggs hatches the worm in a short time after it is voided by the sheep. It lies on the ground in the resting stage until it either crawls or is washed up on a blade of grass. Sheep eat it with the grass in this resting period. In ten days there is a full grown stomach worm in the sheep's stomach. The worm lays eggs and the entire process repeats itself as long as there are sheep present in which the worms can reach maturity.

MONDAY CLUB STUUY POTTERY AND CEREMICS

With the study of Ceramics, October 25, the Monday club now has an insight into the departmental work of the year and can visualize the good things that are to follow in "Modern American Poetry," "History," "Opera" and Ceramics. Each has its charm as well as intellectual value.

The forming of vessels or utensils of any sort out of clay is of high antiquity, being practiced among races in prehistoric times. Th the various kinds of pottery and porcelain differ from each other in detail of their manufacture, yet the foundation the clay proper is the gift of Mother Earth.

Miss Littleton, chairman of the Ceramic department, presided and interestingly told of the origin of pottery. Miss Florence Hoffman described the "Pottery of Mound Builders" and "Indian Pottery" Miss Yates the "Pottery of the Pacific States" and Mrs. W. L. Mack "Pottery of the Mississippi Valley." Miss Yates interspersed her paper with illustrations and Miss Hoffman displayed a specimen of the art of the Mound Builders loaned her by Attorney Barton Walters and which is a part of his valuable collection. In connection with Mrs. Mack's paper mention was made of the the specimens of Charles Lewis said to be one of the most valuable in central Ohio. Many of these came from his own farm in the historic Pickaway Plains.

Mrs. Anderson, Mrs. Nickerson and Mrs. Ritz, each gave an interesting description of the convention of federated clubs held in Nelsonville and of the acceptance of the convention to meet in Circleville in 1927. A part of club work in which the public is invited to participate is the musical at Memorial hall November 4, by the Chillicothe Choral society under the direction of Mrs. Maxwell.

Muscle Has Red Cells

The muscles of the human body, it has recently been discovered, are filled with a red coloring substance almost identical with that in the red blood cells of the blood. The amount of this red substance seems to determine largely the power of the muscle and it disappears rapidly if the muscle is paralyzed, thus showing the importance of exercising in keeping the muscles in trim.

The Opened Doors

By DUFORD JANNE

(Copyright.)

"WHY, child, you have been weeping!"

Winnifred looked up at the gray, kind eyes of the girl who had just entered the bedroom. The friendly interest in the gray eyes stirred the younger girl to answer.

"I have been, Agnes. I am just desperately lonely. You girls in the house are all good to me, but I just seem to be out of things," Winnifred answered, the tears coming again into her dark eyes.

The oldest girl in Mrs. McCarthy's homelike boarding house, Agnes, guessed the situation. "Tell me about it, honey," she said gently.

Winnifred told—all about her coming to the city where she knew no one to take a position in the importing office, made up of men who had grown gray in the business. She told Agnes that no one seemed to take an interest in her; that she heard the girls going out with their friends. "I know I am homely with my turned-up nose and straw-colored hair. If I only were attractive perhaps—" Winnifred did not finish the sentence.

Agnes slipped her capable arms about the slight shoulders. "I just came in to tell you that Will Jackson wants you to go with him and the rest of our crowd to a dance at the park—"

"No! Is it true?"

"Every word of it! Now, dear, let me take you under my wing. You have a turned-up nose and your hair is—never mind, the point is, you dress your hair in just the wrong way. Your cheeks and your eyes are pretty, but you must give 'em a chance. Every girl has some strong points, but she's got to find them and dress for them. The men do the same. If a man has red hair, do you ever find him wearing a purple tie? I guess not! You leave it to me!" Agnes said in her whole-hearted way.

Agnes' fine taste and knowledge had worked a miracle.

The end of it was, that on the evening of the park dance, Winnifred stood before the mirror in Agnes' room. She took one look, then whirled and threw her arms around Agnes' neck. "Why, I'm almost pretty!" she gasped.

Agnes laughed. "You are pretty but all I have done is to show you your real self!"

The straw-colored hair had been so arranged that it emphasized the curve of her cheeks and brought out the deep color of her eyes and gave a cheery air to her deceiving nose.

When later, she met Will in the reception room, his sober, handsome face brightened, quickly, and in a way that sent a little thrill through Winnifred. She had often seen him at the house, and his pleasant smile and greeting had been a bright spot for her, even if it was the same smile he gave others. Tonight the smile was different.

But it was in the dancing that she was happiest. All the hours she spent learning to dance, for dancing had not been easy for her, were rewarded then. In Jackson's strong arms, she felt like a feather wafted here and there to the time of joyous music. Other men in the group came to her for dances, and they seemed to enjoy the dancing with her.

The hours went on, the happiest she believed she had ever known. Jackson bribed some of the men to give up dances scheduled with her.

Then she heard the comment of one of the girls in the confusion of securing their wraps and donning them:

"Yes, I know, but Agnes simply made Will Jackson take her. I know because I was in the room when Agnes planned the thing—"

Winnifred heard no more. It seemed as if the floor sank beneath her. Will had been made to go with her.

She was brave. She chatted with Will all the gay ride back, hiding her painful embarrassment. And he was kind to her—but it seemed now to be the kindness of one who is willing to sacrifice himself for another's enjoyment.

She made the good-by as brief as she could, even though he seemed to want to linger. Then she rushed to her little back room, stared at the wall with unseeing eyes, while she tried to bring order in her disordered house of dreams.

Then Agnes came in. Her gray, fine eyes were smiling. Winnifred told her what she had overheard.

Agnes kissed the strained lips. "You heard Bess with her feather-brains. She has it twisted, dear. Will Jackson wanted me to induce you to go; I didn't make him. You've been so shy and—and odd, I guess he thought it would need me. You see, we did not realize you were lonely. Now, look, didn't he ask you the last thing to go to the theater? He did and you said no? Now, look again, midget, you come with me to the phone. Will is sensitive, too. He certainly was happy with you tonight. Come!"

"But I—"

Agnes had her way. She saw the small head laid to the receiver as a wavering voice called and answered another voice. Then Agnes saw the color deepen in the round cheek as something was said into the small ear. When Winnifred turned, the stars were again in her eyes.

"What did he say?" Agnes asked smiling.

Winnifred put her arms around the other girl's neck, and said, half with tears, half with laughter: "Oh, it's—something too nice to tell!"

Half Hour to Open Door

Nearly a half-hour is necessary in which to open or close the steel doors of some of the largest hangars, such as the one at Lakehurst, N. J., and the cost of the operation is about $100.

WARNING

The evening of October 31, is celebrated in many countries, including the good old U. S. A., as Hallowe'en, the evening preceding All Saints' Day, in merrymaking with playful ceremonies and charms to discover future husbands or wives.

We would appreciate it very much if our young folks, would confine their joy-making to the proper evening, and refrain from any pranks that are in violation of our city ordinances, such as marking windows with soap, throwing missiles at doors that are apt to break glass, removing property from one place to another, destruction of fences, shutters, flower pots, etc. Such violators, if apprehended, will be prosecuted. Parents can assist our department very much by cautioning their children in what can and cannot be done legally. We want all to enjoy the occasion but in the right spirit.

Respectfully,

W. H. WARNER, Chief of Police.

HUNT LOBSTERS

Honolulu, Oct. 26.—With the opening of the lobster fishing season, outdoor enthusiasts are turning to a new form of recreation. Armed with a net and spear, Honolulu's week-ending population has turned to the coral reef for entertainment. The old Hawaiian method of fishing with torch and spear at night, is proving the most popular in the search for the crustaceans, but many cling to the boat and net style.

EXPENSIVE PRANK

Last night young men and boys celebrating Hallowe'en maliciously turned a number of large stones off the fence in front of the residence of Dr. Howard Jones in Park Place, North Court street, damaging shrubbery and trees on the lot.

It undoubtedly required crowbars for the celebrators to move the large stones and if they are apprehended they will be prosecuted.

FRANK DAVIS

REPUBLICAN CANDIDATE FOR SHERIFF OF PICKAWAY COUNTY.

This man has lived in the county all his life. He believes in the enforcement of all laws. If elected, he pledges himself to perform the duties of the office to the best of his abiliey.

Voters, think before you cast your ballots November 2, then give this man the consideration due one who has spent his entire past life as a resident of the county.

PAUL M. HERBERT

Republican Candidate for State Senator Tenth Ohio District, Franklin and Pickaway Counties.

I am 36 years old, was born in Ohio and lived in Ohio all my life excepting the period of time spent in the military service overseas during the World war; graduated from Ohio State university, A. B. Degree, 1912, and took law at the State university. During the war I served with the 323d and 324th machine gun battalion at Camp Sherman and overseas. I spent seventeen months in foreign service.

During my two terms in the lower house, I took an active part in reducing the road assessments that so heavily burden the farmer. I, also, was the author of the measure establishing the Ohio system of criminal identification. That law has now been in effect three years and during that time has been instrumental in securing the apprehension of about twelve thousand nationally known criminals. I am informed that the following states have copied the Ohio system: South Dakota, Florida, Michigan, Missouri, Oklahoma, Vermont, Washington and Utah, and that other states noting the efficiency at little cost of the Ohio system, will adopt it during the legislative session this coming winter.

In view of the depleted condition of the state treasury, it has been suggested that a tax be levied on all property in Ohio. Such a tax would fall the heaviest upon the farmers and home owners. If elected to the senate, shall oppose any further taxation upon the farms or the homes for the reason that taxes already are too heavy upon these two foundations of our state and national existence.

Beginning of Great Era

What is said to have been the first practical American steamboat was exhibited on the Delaware river in 1787 by John Fitch and attained a speed of eight miles an hour in dead water.

STARVE OUT CUT WORMS

Recalling the losses from the ravages of the cut worm and sod web-worm in cornfields this Spring, T. H. Parks, extension entomologist at the Ohio State University, says now is the time to insure against loss next Spring. Pickaway county farmers will do well to heed the warning.

The pest winters in old sod fields below the surface of the soil. If, as is the custom in Ohio, the corn has been planted on an old sod there will be nothing green but the new corn in the field for the worms to feed on. They then break their long fast on corn seedlings, the food nearest at hand.

Where topography and the texture of the soil permit, plowing in November and December for the next corn crop is an easy method of control. They will starve in the Spring before the corn has had time to grow because the sod they would feed on is turned under.

There will be cutworms in sod that is a year old and over regardless of previous treatment. The soil must be plowed to plant corn and if it can be done at a time to farm around the pest the grower is sure to save time and money for poison and its application in the Spring.

OHIO COUNCIL OF CHURCHES ELECT OFFICERS

Columbus, Oct. 26.—(UP.)—Officers of the Ohio Council of Churches were re-elected at the closing session of the assembly here today.

The officers re-elected are: Myers Y. Cooper, Cincinnati, president; W. H. McMasters, Mt. Union College; Gardner Lattimer, Columbus and Homer C. Selby, Portsmouth, vice presidents; and King G. Thompson, Columbus, treasurer.

A new vice presidency was created by the assembly and Fred W. Ramsey, of Cleveland, elected.

The nominating committee will report the following names for membership on the executive committee: L. B. B. Williams, Mt. Vernon; Rev. T. L. Loew, Rev. I. E. Miller and Dr. Charles Zorbaugh, Columbus. Eight members of the committee hold-over.

Columbus, Oct. 26.—Merritt Green, of Findlay, was received at the Ohio Penitentiary shortly after noon today and begins to serve his sentence.

GUARD INCREASED AT CANTON WORKHOUSE

Canton, Oct. 26.—(UP.)—The police guard about the Canton workhouse was increased late today when it was disclosed that a message had been smuggled to Pat McDermott, center of the investigation into the murder of Don R. Mellett. Mrs. John W. Boyer, wife of the superintendent admitted, police said, that she had taken a message from E. L. Mills, attorney representing Louis Mazer and Ben Rudner, indicted for the Mellett murder, asking McDermott if he wanted an attorney.

Judge A. W. Agler this afternoon denied a motion by Mills to permit him to see McDermott.

BARRERE & NICKERSON
CIRCLEVILLE, O.

I Accepted Your Challenge Mr. Underwood. Where Were You?

I note in a Circleville paper that you issue a challenge to me to meet you and discuss the issues of the Campaign. Why did you send it to a newspaper instead of to me personally?

You whispered the same challenge last Thursday at Logan. I heard the whisper and accepted an invitation to meet with you in your own City, New Lexington, at the Nonpartisan Voters' League meeting. I WAS THERE. WHERE WERE YOU? Every candidate both district and county, both Democratic and Republican was there, and made an address, it was an all day meeting, and YOU WERE NOT THERE.

You issued your challenge through a foreign newspaper instead of to me, personally, in the hope I would not see it. When "I called your bluff" you "backed up" and conveniently absented yourself from a discussion in your own City among your home people.

You say I "did not have the ability" to discuss issues. I readily admit that I am a business man rather than an orator, yet I was a newspaper editor for several years, and received no complaints from my subscribers as to my inability to express myself.

You frankly admit your ability as an orator and statesman but I have the first time yet see, or hear of, any audience being carried away by your oratorical efforts or any record showing your "eminent statesmanship."

You dub as "unfair, untruthful and slanderous" a statement made in the Scioto Gazette on October 6th, 1926, and call it "11th hour propaganda." October 6th was three weeks ago today Where have you been these three weeks, Mr. Underwood, and why do you not deny even now, the statements made then?

You say the "salary grab" was a Republican measure. If so, why did you betray your Democratic Constituency by voting for it? You pose as a Democrat. Do you only vote for the Republican measures that benefit you, personally? Evidently.

Third terms ordinarily are given as a compensation for meritorious service, my third term as County Auditor was. Why don't you tell the people what you have done to entitle you to a third term? They might believe it. Why don't you try?

You pose as an attorney and yet you make the statement that a reappraisement would increase the Auditor's Salary $10,000. Let me inform you as an ignorant lawyer that the Auditor's Salary is based upon the population of the County only, and not upon the tax duplicate. Furthermore, the Constitution of Ohio prohibits any Official in Ohio from receiving an increase in salary while in office. Therefore your satement coming from an attorney classified you as malicious or an ignoramus

I have never favored a reappraisement except as a means of equalizing values, not increasing them. I reduced both Ross County's debt and taxes during the World War. Can you point to any such accomplishment?

I was defeated in the primaries for the Legislature, but it was by a Republican and not by a Democrat.

It was impossible for me to take your statement that I supported you two years ago seriously. I was "for you" then just as I am now.

Why did you wait three weeks to start your "11th hour propaganda" Mr. Underwood? You only amuse me. Do you know any other funny stories.

Walter S. Barrett

Republican Candidate for Congress Eleventh Ohio District
